Product Information

Warrants

A warrant is a time-limited right to subscribe for shares, debentures, loan stock or government securities and is exercisable against the original issuer of the underlying securities. It is important to note that a relatively small movement in the price of the underlying security results in a disproportionately large movement, unfavourable or favourable, in the price of the warrant. As a result, the prices of warrants can be volatile. The right to subscribe conferred by a warrant is generally limited by time, which means that if the investor fails to exercise this right within the predetermined time-scale then the investment becomes worthless. It is therefore important to understand that if you are considering purchasing a warrant you should be prepared to lose all of the money you have invested plus any commission or other transaction charges.

Securitised Derivatives

These instruments may give you a time-limited right to acquire or sell one or more types of investment, which is normally exercisable against someone other than the issuer of that investment. Or they may give you rights under a contracts for difference, which allow for speculation on fluctuations in the value of the property of any description or an index, such as the FTSE 100 index. In both cases, the investment or property may be referred to as the "underlying instrument". These instruments often involve a high degree of gearing or leverage, so that a relatively small movement in the price of the underlying investment results in a much larger movement, unfavourable or favourable, in the price of the instrument. The price of these instruments can therefore be volatile. These instruments have a limited life, and may (unless there is some form of guaranteed return to the amount you are investing in the product) expire worthless if the underlying instrument does not perform as expected. You should only buy this product if you are prepared to sustain a total loss of the money you have invested plus any commission or other transaction charges.
